Workers in Fifth War Loan Campaign To be Third Army

Chairman Fred H. Kraft of the Fifth War Bond campaign for Ocean Beach, having been called to Sacramento to attend a special session of the state legislature, has appointed Capt. Burritt Mills of the Lownes Variety Store to direct the local drive. As announced last week the campaign will run from Monday, June 12 through Saturday, July 8.

Capt. Mills announces that the Ocean Beach employers will be contacted to learn their number of employees and to enlist the support of both in this home front war effort. He said Wednesday that a window decorating contest has been decided on as a feature of the campaign here. Morgan Elliott of the local Bank of America staff has been placed in charge of the contest and Marc Strauss and Alfred Hunt have been named to assist him, Capt. Mills reported.

All those assisting in the drive will be designated as the "Third Army," according to instructions from Washington. The "First Army" is on the fighting front, the "Second Army" is on the production front.

Full Page Ads Planned

Arrangements are being made to publish a series of five full page advertisements in promotion of the campaign, the publication to be in the Ocean Beach News. The war finance division of the U. S. treasury department has prepared these advertisements and sent them to the News, with instructions to ask the local business and professional men and women to underwrite their publication. Already several of the business men have placed their names and their business to be printed underneath these ads for the five issues. In order to save time the News announces the invitation to others to see this office this week-end or Monday to make sure that their names are on the five pages. Only charge will be the usual nominal fee that has prevailed in the previous bond drives.

'Chute the Works' Is Slogan

In this, San Diego county's greatest war bond drive, the slogan selected is "Chute the Works — Buy More Than Before!" Quota for the entire county is $45,725,000. Of this amount —which is 15 percent greater than in the successful Fourth war loan campaign—$22,500,000 will be in Series E, F and G bonds, types most favored by the public. The remainder will be in treasury notes designed for corporations and other large investors.

Specific Purpose Decided

Following the policy adopted in previous bond drives, the San Diego county war finance committee will dramatize the Fifth war loan by earmarking the $22,500,000 E, F and G quota for a specific purpose. In this instance it will be the purchase of thousands of parachutes for use by Allied Nations' air-borne troops in impending grand scale invasion operations.

MYSTERY OF WHO WAS DONKEY POISONER IN OCEAN BEACH UNSOLVED

Up to Thursday the mystery of the party guilty of poisoning a donkey belonging to Charles D. Denver, 1430 Redwood st. remained unsolved. Denver offered a reward of $25 in an effort to apprehend the person who poisoned his pet.

The donkey, being cared for by Mrs. P. Conteraro, of 4559 Pescadero st., died last Friday. Police and veterinarians were called in. Some believed Barney was poisoned. Others believed he died of a blood clot on the brain.

RENOVATION OF TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH UNDER WAY, REPORTS THE VICAR

Improvements to the Trinity Episcopal church of Ocean Beach have been started, reports Father Philip Harris. The Digger's club began the good work, he said, Wednesday, by cleaning and waxing the floors.

A second improvement now under way is the painting of the church, which is being handled by a crew of the members led by Father Harris.

Mrs. Marian Harris of Long Beach, Calif., arrived Thursday for a week's visit with her son, Father Philip Harris, 2083 Sunset Cliffs.

Church Honors 49 Men at Memorial Sunday Services

Memorial services in honor of Claude Muncy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jordan of 4912 W. Point Loma blvd., were held in Point Loma Methodist church Sunday forenoon, Rev. J. F. Roberts in charge. Muncy, who was serving on the battleship Arizona, was killed in action at Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. Mr. Jordan, who is a chief warrant officer in the navy and is on sea duty, was unable to attend the service. Claude's mother was present.

As a tribute to his memory, the parents gave to the church an attractive plaque, on which have been inscribed the names of 46 young men of this church who are in the armed forces, also the names of Robert Cochrane, who has been missing in action since Nov. 24, 1943 and that of John L. Lake who, like Muncy is reported to have been killed in action at Pearl Harbor. Robert was a radioman on the airplane carrier Liscombe Bay which was sunk near the Gilbert islands in the southwest Pacific. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Cochrane of 4818 Pescadero ave. and a graduate of Point Loma high school.

Another feature of the services Sunday was the dedication of an American flag and of a Christian flag which were purchased for display in the church. Following are the names of the 46 now on duty with the armed forces:

Two of the lads were apprehended driving the Ford at Ibsen st. between Evergreen and Locust sts., Ocean Beach, and on being questioned by the officers told of the whereabouts of their five companions. Later the five were arrested on the beach at the foot of Saratoga ave. The two lads admitted having stolen a car, the officers report. All seven youths were turned over to the sheriff's office.

Dana Junior High To Entertain 300 6th Graders Friday

Dana Junior high school will entertain over 300 sixth graders, including Ocean Beach pupils, Friday afternoon in the annual Dana play day. After a program of games and sports on the school athletic field a grand tour of the entire building will take place and an opportunity will be offered the elementary students, who will be promoted to junior high school this fall, to meet their future teachers.

The parade will end in the cafeteria and the youngsters will there be treated to refreshments through the courtesy of the Ocean Beach Kiwanis club. Each child will wear an attractively printed badge which will identify him (or her) as a member of a certain team. Different colored badges will effectively mingle the children of the eight participating elementary schools and give them an opportunity to get acquainted with their future classmates from the various parts of the area served by the Dana Junior "high."

Ocean Beach, Azure Vista, Cabrillo, Loma Portal, Mission Beach Fremont, Frontier, Dewey and Grant Schools will participate in the fun. With the large increase in population expected this summer due to the completion of the federal housing projects the entering seventh class at Dana this fall will increase from 300 to about 450 and the total enrollment of the school will increase to over 900 students.

Clarence R. Swenson, principal, and Cleon O. Davis, vice-principal and counselor of Dana have been visiting the various elementary sixth grade classes of the eight feeding schools the past week to acquaint the future seventh graders with their new junior high program for next fall. The faculty and student council are anxious to do everything possible to make the new entering students feel at home in their new school, reports Swenson.

Speedboat Driver Arrested Following Crash Into Canoe

Officers W. F. Robbins and H. C. Fernandez of the Ocean Beach police force Wednesday arrested Marion San Clemente, 24, of Cardiff, Calif. on suspicion of operating a motorboat too close to landings and of assault with a deadly weapon. They reported that Clemente, whose wife and two children were in the speed boat with him, had driven the boat in Mission Bay at 25 miles an hour, had struck an canoe containing four people, overturning the canoe and seriously injuring Sgt. Victor R. Metcalf of Camp Miramar, Marine training base.

The sergeant suffered a deep gash on his left arm from his contact with the speed boat's propeller. In the canoe with Metcalf were another Marine sergeant and two WAVES. These three also were thrown into the water but escaped injury. Clemente was taken to the city jail to await court action on the charges against him.

Commenting on the case, Acting Sgt. L. G. Chauvaud of the local station said Thursday that "we are having trouble again with motorboat drivers exceeding the speed limit in nearby waters." The health and safety code, he pointed out, provides that "it is a misdemeanor to operate a speed boat in excess of five knots within 100 feet of any bather or within 200 feet of any beach frequented by bathers, or within 200 feet of any swimming float, diving platform, life line, way or landing float to which boats are made fast or which are used for the embarkation or discharge of passengers."

Memorial Speaker Pleads That This Nation Keep Faith

In view of our failure, at least in part, to keep faith with Americans who paid the supreme sacrifice in the first World war, the tragic question this nation is now facing is whether or not we will keep faith with those of our countrymen who die in this war, Lt. David Kingman, returned chaplain from the Aleutian islands, declared in a Memorial day address delivered Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of Ocean Beach Kiwanis club. Chaplain Kingman was in the combat zone in the island of Attu when the Americans captured it from the Japs.

Myron Insko officiated as program chairman and introduced the speaker.

At the business session, the club decided to ask the members for a fund of $150, as a community service, for the purchase of an infant incubator for the "Door of Hope" home of the Salvation Army, which is located in Ocean Beach community. The need for such equipment was emphatically demonstrated a few days ago when an infant, weighing only 2¾ pounds, was prematurely born Friday at the local institution. On Tuesday forenoon, a delegation of the Kiwanis members paid a visit to the home to get first hand information of the need for the new equipment.

Two new members were inducted into the club, Donald L. Beckstead and Frank F. Swan. Ed Evans was a guest of his father-in-law, Clyde Tallman; and Lt. Cmdr. Harley Smart, a guest of his father-in-law, George Moriarty.

James McKinney, a past president of the club, and E. D. Clapp and H. N. McKie, all of the San Diego club, were visiting Kiwanians.

Two Meetings Called On Recreation Center

Both for Discussion Preliminary to City Council's June 6 Conference

Two community meetings preliminary to the San Diego city council's June 6 conference on the Ocean Beach community recreation center are on the agenda. One was held Wednesday evening, and the second will be held Monday evening, starting at 8:00 o'clock at the Log Cabin.

The meeting Monday has been called by the Ocean Beach chamber of commerce, Lloyd Greeson, president, announced Thursday. The public generally is invited, he said, and the plan will be to discuss the recreation center proposition, which evidently looms right now as the main question before Ocean Beach people.

The city council conference, to which Ocean Beach community leaders have been invited, has been set for 10 a.m. in the city council chambers at the civic center, and indications are that an unusually large delegation of interested Ocean Beach folks will attend.

At the community meeting, held Wednesday evening, also at the Log Cabin, a group of 50 men and women attended and many of them took part in the recreation center discussion. Rev. J. F. Roberts of the Methodist church presided, and announced that plans of the proposed community center building and grounds would be shown.

Vote For Upper Site

Following the discussion a vote was taken, which was unanimous in favor of the Santa Monica-Ebers site, one of two sites proposed for the center, the other being the city property at the foot of Newport ave.

Speakers called on were Mrs. Martha McIntosh, principal of the Ocean Beach elementary school; Clarence Swenson, principal of Dana Junior high school; Mrs. C. W. Early, president of the Woman's club; and Mrs. D. C. Muchmore, who presented charts showing plans that had been drawn. Others who spoke included Joe Lownes and Dr. Alfred Sand.

The speakers said they were in favor of using the Santa Monica-Ebers site, stating that it would be centrally and conveniently located for the residential section of the city, and that ample grounds are there available for the various games contemplated as well as the buildings. They also pointed out that provision could be made there for the needs of the entire family, and all age groups.

On the matter of financing, Rev. Roberts reported that the chances are favorable for getting federal funds as well as municipal especially if the community would raise a small part of the cost of the center.

Red Cross Appeals For More Surgical Dressing in Drive

"The Red Cross program for making surgical dressings for the three coming months is extremely vital — as this is pre-invasion work," declares Mrs. Lauren Willis, head of the surgical dressings project of the San Diego chapter.

"The fact that the gauze must be cut here at our headquarters and packed in waterproof bags so as to be floated ashore where there are no docks or where the docks have been bombed, gives us added work.

"We are falling behind on our quota at an extremely bad time. Last month 70,379 below the previous month.

CARL SCHRODER TALKS AT LOS ANGELES MAY 31 ON PROTECTING GAME FISH

Carl Schroder, veteran Ocean Beach fish and game conservationist, was a speaker Wednesday at Los Angeles before the Southern California Conservation association in behalf of the San Diego county fish and game association, of which he is a director.

He emphasized to the group the importance of protecting the game fish as an attraction to tourists and stressed the need for curbing commercial fishermen on their practice of wholesale catch-es of the sardines that are food for the commercial fish. Sardines are a common and much needed food for these fish, he said, and the net catching and sale of the sardines for fertilizer and for oil is greatly depleting this supply of food for the commercial fish.

Air Raid Wardens 'On the Job' While Radios Off Tuesday

Ocean Beach air raid wardens were "on the job" Tuesday evening when San Diego's three radio stations went off the air at 7:05 o'clock after a warning of the approach of unidentified aircraft. The local stations were off the air for 35 mintues. Other stations in southern California were ordered off the air two minutes earlier and returned to service at 7:38 p.m.

Tom Plant, district air raid warden for the Ocean Beach district seven, and the sector wardens under him, reported for duty promptly here at the local center, in uniform and with their equipment "stood by" until the semi-alert had been cancelled by the military authorities. Capt. Burritt Mills, bombing reconnaissance warden and consultant for the eighth service command, also was "on the job" during the radio silence.

The latest previous San Diego alert was flashed at 8:31 p.m. April 25, 1943, and lasted 57 minutes. Since Dec. 10, 1941, three days after Pearl Harbor, there have been 26 alerts ordered in San Diego.

The western defense command May 30 issued this explanatory statement from Los Angeles:

"The Los Angeles fighter wing ordered a radio silence in the Los Angeles area at 7:05 p.m. May 30 when unidentified aircraft were reported approaching from off shore.

"The radio silence was ended at 7:38 p.m. when the aircraft were identified as friendly."

Army spokesmen said the alert at no time became more serious than a "radio silence."

Ocean Beach School Pupils Present Play 'Hansel and Gretel'

The fourth grade children of room 9 gave the play, "Hansel and Gretel" to the entire school on Wednesday, May 24. On Thursday, May 25 they gave the play for their parents. The stage property was made by Virginia Green, Wilma Sohnlein, Billy Hall, Paul Nelson, Sue Ann Overdeer, Jeanne Simmons, Bobby Northern, Jay Kowal, and Don Mellon. The children of the cast were De O. Browning, "Gretel"; Billy Hall, "Hansel"; Virginia Green, the witch; Sue Ann Overdeer, the mother; Jack Gardner, the father; and Vee Dee Browning, the sandman. Judith Stangl danced between acts and Wilma Sohnlein was the announcer.

A movie, "Peck's Bad Boy at the Circus" was given in the school auditorium Friday afternoon. Money from these school movies goes into the school fund which is used to defray school expenses that are not included in regular school supplies.

The second graders of room 15 have corn in their garden that is three feet tall. The second graders of room 3 have turnips large enough to eat, and the plants in the seed bed of room 9 will be ready for transplanting in their home gardens.

EMPLOYMENT:
On Decline

For the first time since the war began, the nation's manpower appeared in balance with needs, with supply of labor in critical areas the only problem, the National Industrial Conference board said.

Earlier the department of agriculture noted a 4 per cent decline in farm labor, with some of the decrease attributed to the inability to get into the fields because of unfavorable weather. As a result of the delay, many farmers were expected to switch acreage from small grains to row crops, necessitating additional work.

Reflecting the continued drop in manufacturing industries, there were 41,800,000 non-farm workers in March, compared with the peak of 43,000,000 in July, 1943. Only in transportation was there an increase shown over last year.

EUROPE:
Foe Reels

With soldiers from six nations fighting shoulder to shoulder in Allied ranks, the Germans fell slowly back in Italy, their retreating columns under heavy fire of the advancing host, drawing closer to the Eternal City of Rome.

As the Allied blow fell in Italy, thousands of U. S. and British planes continued their heavy bombardment of Axis communications and industry in western Europe, their explosives twisting steel rails into fanciful forms and reducing segments of factories into smouldering pyres. Preparatory to a great offensive from the east, Russian bombers hammered at Nazi supply bases.

With the collapse of their Gustav line in Italy, the Germans fell back slowly toward the Anzio beachhead to the north, where their embattled troops clashed with massed Allied forces slugging for a breakthrough, which would trap the retreating army from the rear.

West Wall

The searching eyes of aerial photography have uncovered what lies ahead of Allied troops massed to storm Germany's formidable west wall.

Under command of icy, 69-year-old Field Marshal von Rundstedt, the west wall shapes up as a series of deeply entrenched steel and concrete fortifications stretching back far inland, and carefully camouflaged to prevent concentration of Allied fire on them.

Dotting the scenic French landscape are innocent-looking, little houses, sheltering the muzzles of big German field pieces whose carriages are sunk into the ground, and poking their noses from the sides of hills, are rocket guns buried in the terrain.

CRYPTOSTEGIA

The government's experimental rubber project in Haiti has been abandoned as a failure and an investment of $8,000,000 is being written off. It was explained that it was found impossible to recover any appreciable quantity of rubber from the desert vine "cryptostegia" which was grown on the 40,000-acre tract.

It had been confidently hoped that this tough plant would become a major source of rubber for this hemisphere and would provide a money crop for the natives.

PACIFIC:
1,000-Mile Advance

With his forces taking another long jump of 125 miles to the northwest in Dutch New Guinea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur advanced closer to his cherished goal of the Philippines, there to avenge Bataan.

The latest gain drew U. S. forces nearer to the thick cluster of islands lying off Dutch New Guinea which the enemy reportedly has fortified with air bases to counter any Allied thrust against the Indies to the south or the Philippines to the north.

In advancing 125 miles westward, U. S. forces were 1,000 miles away from Milne Bay, far to the southeast and from which General MacArthur launched the campaign that has gradually pushed the Japs out of their farthest South Pacific holdings.

TRANSPORTATION:
Overhauling Asked

Correction of inequalities and discriminations in present freight rate structures to reflect the cost of service, and creation of three permanent federal agencies to keep abreast of transportation problems, were among the recommendations made by a special board of investigation and research organized by congressional enactment in 1940.

At the same time, the board went into the south's protest against certain freight rate differences benefiting the northeast, declaring that figures showed that what the south really needed was a development of her own industry to utilize her abundant natural resources.

The board called for the shippers' freedom in the selection of reasonable joint routes and rates of the same or different types of transportation facilities to speed commerce.

CHINA:
Seek Unity

With the Japanese tightening their grip on China through their control of her seaports and productive industrial centers, Chiang Kai-Shek moved to gird the country for a final stand against the enemy by drawing the Communists in the north fully into the battle.

As Chiang met with Communist leader Lin Tso-han, Chinese regulars continued their drive into northern Burma, in an effort to join up with Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's troops moving eastward from India, and thus open a new supply route to China.

Upon the extent of Chiang's concession of self-rule and participation in the Chinese central government to the Communists reportedly will rest the degree of their cooperation.

BRITISH EMPIRE:
Favor League

Having concluded their long conference with Prime Minister Churchill, Britain's dominion premiers packed their bags for the trip homeward, but not before issuing a statement favoring a world peace organization and avowing a fight to the finish against the common enemy.

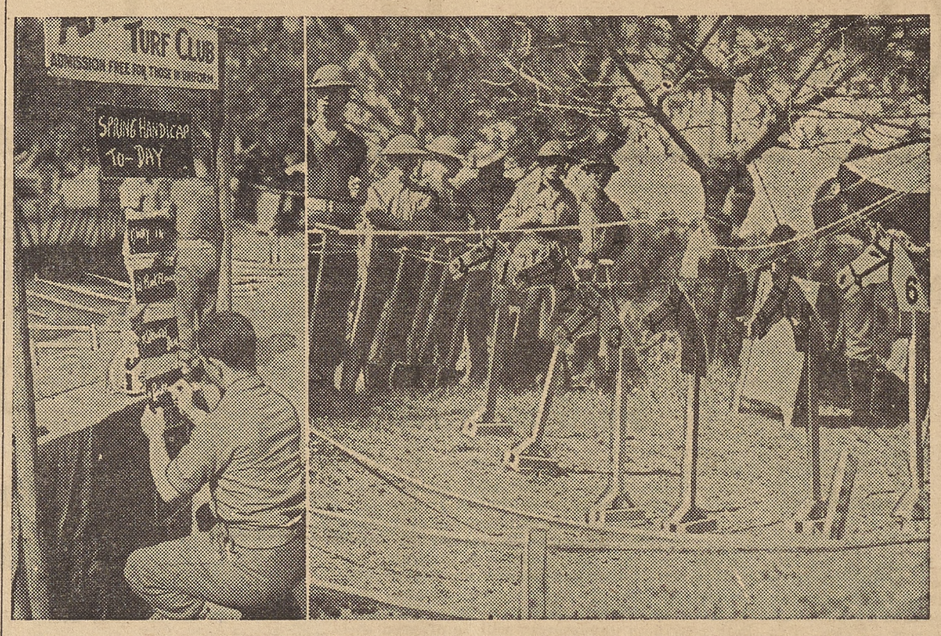

"We affirm that after the war a world organization . . . should be set up and endowed with the necessary power and authority to prevent aggression and violence," the premiers said.

"We rejoice in the unquenchable spirit of our comrades in every country still in the grip of the enemy," the premiers declared. "We shall not turn from the conflict till they are restored to freedom. Not one who marches with us shall be abandoned."

MISCELLANY:

LESS MEAT: There will be about ten pounds less meat per capita available during the latter half of the year, the bureau of agricultural economics estimates. This would mean that average consumption per person for the six month period would total 67.5 pounds, about the same as in the second half of 1943, when all meats were on the ration list.

You Pays Your Money and You Takes Your Choice

Ever hear of the Anzio Turf club? This club has been established only a mile behind the firing lines, at Anzio, Italy, for the amusement of British and U. S. soldiers. Wooden horses are used, which are moved according to numbers shown by throws of dice. Betting is brisk. In picture at left the entries in the "spring handicap" are chalked on the blackboard. At right, the barrier is sprung and they are off.

Lumber Jacks Do Their Bit in Biggest Log Roll

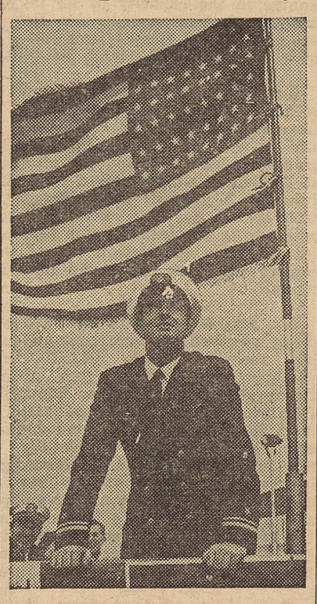

Jean Mullins, 15, lives in one of the many logging camps near Allagash, Maine, which recently contributed a total of 10,000,000 feet of lumber to the largest drive in the East since 1900. The drive was aimed to tie in with the European invasion, since every foot of this wood will go to the war effort. Jean is shown at left rolling a log with her peavey from the pile into the St. John river. Chinese Trade

The United States, Japan, Great Britain and Germany were the principal countries in China's foreign trade during the prewar years. Take 1936, the year before the Marco Polo bridge "incident," as an illustration. In that year these four countries shared 63.51 per cent and 55.56 per cent of China's gross imports and exports respectively. The United States occupied the first place in both imports and exports.

Cocoa Countries

Importance of cocoa in the economies of the other Americas is shown by the fact that in 1938, a comparatively normal year, it was the most important commercial product in value in Ecuador, the second in the Dominican Republic and Panama, third in Brazil and Costa Rica, and fourth in Venezuela. It was a leading crop in Trinidad, and one of the chief exports from Grenada.

Hog Tuberculosis

Federal meat inspection records for 1942 reveal that 1 out of 12 hogs slaughtered in the United States showed lesions of tuberculosis. This amount of infection caused an estimated waste of 14,000,000 pounds of pork that was condemned as unfit for human consumption.

Wood Fuel

Certain woods improve little by drying, and that's important when planning your fuel wood supply. These are white ash, American beech, pignut and shagbark hickory, black locust, red pine, red and white spruce, and gray birch. Most woods need a long period for drying.

Frost Form

When frost forms, the temperature is 32 degrees Fahrenheit or lower at the spot where the frost occurs. The temperature a few feet above the surface of the earth on still, clear mornings often is several degrees higher than it is on the surface. Hence frost may occur on the grass and in low places when the temperature on one's porch, for instance, is distinctly above the freezing point.

Barley Substitute

When used in moderate amounts, a good grade of spring or winter rye can be successfully substituted for barley in the dairy ration. Feeding trials at the Montana agricultural experiment station have shown that when rye makes up from 40 to 50 per cent of the grain ration it has approximately the same feeding value as a good grade of hull barley for milk production when fed with alfalfa hay.

Here's How It Feels to Ride On a B-26 Bombing Run

Crews Know Their Business; Morale Is Good Among British-Based Fliers

By Ernie Pyle.

A U. S. BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND.—These are some of the boys who have been blasting out our invasion path on the continent of Europe. For nearly a year they have been hammering at the wall of defense the Germans have thrown up. How well they have blasted we will know before the summer is over.

They are a squadron of B-26 Marauder bombers. They are representative of the entire mighty weight of the tactical bombers of the Ninth air force. I have come to spend a few days with them because I wanted to get a taste of the pre-invasion assault from the air standpoint before we get a mouthful of the invasion proper from the ground.

Ernie Pyle

The way I happened to come to this certain squadron is one of those things. One night in London I was sitting at a table with some friends in a public house when two boys in uniform leaned over from the next table and asked if I weren't So-and-so.

I said yes, whereupon we got to talking and then we got to be pals and eventually we adjourned from one place to another, as Damon Runyon would say, and kept on adjourning throughout the evening, and a good time was had by all.

These boys were B-26 bombardiers, and in the course of the evening's events they asked if I wouldn't come and live with their squadron awhile. Being nothing if not accommodating, I said sure, why not. And here we are.

The two boys were Lieuts. Lindsey Green (2360 Chestnut street), San Francisco, and Jack Arnold (603 N. Fourteenth street), East St. Louis, Ill. Being redheaded, Lieutenant Arnold goes by the name of "Red Dog." They are both very nice people indeed.

The boys say this is the best squadron in England. Nine out of ten squadrons, or infantry companies, or quartermaster battalions, will say the same thing about themselves. It is a good omen when they talk like that.

This station seems to me to have about the finest spirit I've run onto in our army. It is due, I think, largely to the fact that the whole organization has been made into a real team.

The commander of this group is Col. Wilson R. Wood, Chico, Texas. Five years ago he was an enlisted man. Today, at 25, he is a full colonel. He is a steady, human person and he has got what it takes to blend thousands of men together into a driving unit.

The job of the B-26s is several-fold. For one thing, they had to rid upper France and the Low countries of German fighters as far as possible, to clear the way for our heavy bombers on their long trips into Germany.

They have done this not so much by bombing airdromes, which can be immediately repaired, as by blasting the enemy's reserve supplies of planes, engines and propellers.

Their second job is to disrupt the enemy's supply system. Much of their work of late has been on railroad marshalling yards, and along with A-20s and fighter-bombers, they have succeeded to a point where British papers say Germany cannot maintain a western front by rail.

And third, they constantly work on the enemy's military installations along the Channel coast. They feel that they have done a good job. If they haven't I'm going to be plenty sore at them one of these days, because I might be in the vicinity and if there's anything that makes me sick at the stomach it's a military installation in good working order.

The B-26 is a bomber which is very fast and carries a two-ton bomb load. In its early stages it had a bad name—it was a "hot" plane which took great skill to fly and which killed more people in training than it did in combat.

But the B-26 has lived down the bad name. The boys of this squadron wouldn't fly in anything else. They like it because it can take quick and violent evasive action when the flak is bothersome, and because it can run pretty well from fighters.

Its record over here is excellent. Bombing accuracy has been high and losses have been extremely low. And as for accidents—the thing that cursed the plane in its early days—they have been next to nonexistent here.

The boys so convinced me of the B-26's invulnerability that I took my courage in my hand and went on a trip with them.

They got us up at 2 in the morning. Red Dog gave me an extra pair of long drawers to put on. Chief gave me his combat pants, as I had given mine away in Italy. Also I put on extra sweaters and a mackinaw.

Then we walked through the moonlight under the trees to the mess hall. It was only 2:30 a. m., but we ate breakfast before the take-off. And we had two real fried eggs too. It was almost worth getting up for.

We drove out to the field in a jeep. Some of the boys rode their bicycles. There were a couple of hundred crewman altogether. At the field we went into a big room, brightly lighted, and sat on benches for the briefing.

The briefing lasted almost an hour. Everything was explained in detail—how we would take off, how we would rendezvous in the dark, where we would make the turn toward our target.

Then we went to the locker room and got our gear. Red Dog got me a pair of flying boots, a Mae West life preserver, a parachute and a set of earphones. We got in the jeep again and rode out to the plane.

We stood around talking with the ground crew. Finally, 10 minutes before takeoff time, we got into the plane. One of the boys boosted me up through a hatch in the bottom of the plane, for it was high, and with so many clothes I could hardly move.

I sat back in the radio compartment on some parachutes for the take-off. Red Dog was the only one of the crew who put on his chute. He said I didn't need mine.

We were running light, and it didn't take long to get off the ground. I had never been in a B-26 before. The engines seemed to make a terrific clatter. There were runway markers, and I could see them whiz past the window as we roared down the runway. A flame about a foot long shot out of the exhausts and it worried me at first, but finally I decided that was the way it was supposed to be.

At 12,000 feet up it begins to get daylight before it does on the ground, and while we could now see each other plainly in our B-26, things were still darkly indistinct in England, far down there below us.

Now and then a light would flash on the ground—some kind of marker beacon for us. We passed over some airdromes with their runway lights still on. Far in the distance we could see one lone white light—probably a window some early-rising farmer had forgotten to black out.

"Red Dog" Arnold, the bombardier, was sitting in the copilot's seat, since we weren't carrying a copilot. The boys got me a tin box to sit on right behind Red Dog so I could get a better view.

We climbed higher, and at a certain place the whole group of B-26s made a turn and headed for the target. This wasn't a mission over enemy territory, and there was no danger to it.

As we neared the target Red Dog crawled forward through a little opening into the nose, where the bombardier usually sits. The entire nose is plexiglas, and you can see straight down and all around. He motioned for me to join him.

I squeezed into the tiny compartment. There was barely room for the two of us. The motors made less noise up there. By now daylight had come and everything below was clear and spectacular.

I stayed in the nose until we were well on the way home, and then crawled back and sat in the copilot's seat beside Chief Collins. The sun came out, the air was smooth, and it was wonderful flying along there over England so early in the morning.

The Return Trip—In the Copilot's Seat

We came back over our home airdrome, peeled off one by one, and landed. Red Dog stayed up in the nose during the landing, so I stayed in the copilot's seat. Landing is about the most dangerous part of flying, yet it's the one sensation I love most, especially when riding up front.

Chief put the big plane down so easily we hardly knew when the wheels touched. I was shocked to learn later that we landed at the frightening speed of more than 100 miles an hour. It's just as well I didn't know at the time.

We sat in the plane for a couple of minutes while Chief filled out some reports, and then opened the hatch in the floor and dropped out. I was the first of the group to hit the ground.

Allies, Holding Offensive, Have Invasion Advantage

'Veritas,' Famed British Military Expert, Sees Nazis Handicapped by Being Pinned Inside Defense Circle.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

What happens when "the coiled springs of action" are released in the cataclysm of invasion?

Europe is enveloped in the smoke and confusion of battle and only occasionally does this fog lift "showing the swaying forms of vast armies amid the screaming clatter of mechanized combat." It descends again "blotting out the view and leaving us uncertain as to the shape of the plan."

That is the observation of one of the keenest British military experts, "Veritas," whose privately circulated analyses are cabled to this country and eagerly scanned by persons most interested in the conflict now going on.

And Veritas reminds us that we can only maintain our sense of perspective and proportion if we keep carefully in mind certain fundamental aspects of the military situation from the German standpoint. This, likewise, applies to the political aspects.

A well-known psychologist, Dr. Norman Maier of the University of Michigan who predicted the failure of the Munich appeasement program by demonstrating in advance that according to psychological principles, it could not succeed, recently made some interesting observations.

He said that Hitler would be liquidated and a revolution would take place in Germany as soon as the last of the "myths" created by the German propagandists for the purpose of lulling the Germans into a false sense of security were exploded. The Germans, he explains, belong to a "frustrated society." Hitler cured their frustration with aggression, when aggression is frustrated, nothing else will be left.

Revised Propaganda

This type of "security" propaganda being fed to the German people had to be revised recently. So much had been said about the strength of Nazi fortifications that the leaders realized the people had developed what they called a "Maginot mind." In other words, they had become reassured to the point of complacency. Therefore, the more recent propaganda foreshadowed successful landings by the Allies and played up the second line of defense.

For instance, it was stated that the city of Lyons was fortified to resist operations in case it became the center of the conflict (Lyons is 200 miles inland).

Thus, the effort was made to preserve the myth of security up to the last moment. As to the possibility of revolution before desperation seizes the Germans, that is slight. It is probable that the Germans might oust the Nazis now if they dared; but it is doubtful if anything short of the sheer desperation following defeat will turn them against the guns of the black shirts.

A Swiss who returned from Berlin just before the day and night bombing of Germany began, said:

"There can be no thought of revolution. The Gestapo and the SS are too powerful."

He recited this incident:

"An Italian worker who was passing through the Friederichstrasse was just about to pick up (after the bombing of a cigarette factory) one of the many boxes of cigarettes lying around on the ground. Nearby was a young SS man armed with an automatic pistol . . . without any previous warning, he took aim and shot the Italian down."

This is said to be a typical incident and the Swiss declared that a German woman who drops her pocketbook does not dare to stoop over and pick it up.

The Military Aspects

The military aspects are a very different matter. The great strength of German strategy built on "interior lines" has been turned to a weakness. A nation on the offensive which can strike overpowering blows at any point it chooses along the perimeter of the territory it controls has a great advantage.

Its lines are short, they are protected, they move from the center outward like the radii of a circle. The opposing power must laboriously follow the circumference—witness the supply lines from the Allies to Russia which have to sweep around all of Europe to Murmansk or all around Africa to the Middle East.

But interior lines become a weakness when a nation goes on the defensive. As a matter of fact. General von Clausewitz, who wrote one of the most authoritative books on strategy, said:

"When you have to go on the defensive, it is too late to go on the defensive."

When you do so, interior lines make it all the worse.

Veritas comments on the position of the enemy in the present situation as follows:

". . . the fact that he is inside a circumference which he must maintain is a deadly disadvantage because he is pinned down at every point on the circle, whereas his opponents are free to exploit their latent advantages of exterior lines by hitting everywhere at once if they choose."

Therefore in viewing the present situation in Europe we must bear these two factors in mind:

First, the Nazis can hold down the revolution within until the Germans realize that their last myth of security is exploded. But second, the strategic position of the Allies, coupled with their superiority in manpower, air power and amount of equipment, gives them a decided advantage.

Through the fog of the battle, the occasional glimpse we catch must be interpreted in the light of these fundamentals.

Training for Farmers

Recently, the Office of Defense Transportation announced that public vocational training schools in 190 cities throughout the country were turning over to the automotive industry a "constantly increasing number of workers trained in one or more phases of automotive industry."

The United States Office of Education is sponsoring the automotive maintenance training program. They are trying to help fill the gap in automotive maintenance personnel caused by the war.

But what many people do not realize is that it is also conducting courses that directly touch the farm. Congress appropriated $12,500,000 for the food production war training program which the Office of Education administers.

The minimum age limits for both out-of-school and in-school persons have now been removed and all courses are now offered to urban as well as rural persons.

Twenty-two courses are being offered in which the farmer is interested, and they run all the way from the operation, care and repair of tractors, trucks and automobiles to soil and water conservation. And besides the various handiworks in the mechanical line around the farm such as machinery repair, woodworking, elementary electricity and construction of farm machinery and equipment, there are special courses in milk production, poultry production, eggs, pork, beef, mutton, lamb, wool, soybeans, peanuts and various commercial vegetable production.

There is general training for farm workers, production of fruit and nuts, vegetable gardening and pretty nearly everything that one has to know how to do around a farm.

These courses are conducted through the cooperation of the public schools and are responsible to the state board for vocational education.

William T. Spanton, chief of the division for vocational agriculture, says he believes that on a dollar-for-dollar basis, no appropriations made by congress to stimulate increased food production have contributed more to this end than has been true of the appropriations already made to the U. S. Office of Education for these specific vocational training programs.

"Practically all of our 8,000 local departments of vocational agriculture, scattered widely throughout the entire country," says Mr. Spanton, "have available on the local school ground a well-equipped farm shop building where courses in farm machinery repair are given to farmers and where, at the same time, their much-needed farm machinery and equipment can and is being actually overhauled and repaired."

TIN CUP PLANNERS

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told a House committee on postwar policies at Washington that state and city demands for federal support of their public works must diminish—that local governments are generally in condition to finance their needs.

At a Chicago meeting of the American Society of planning officials a member of the New York City planning commission stressed the importance of federal-state financial aid in carrying out the post-war plans of the greatest city in the United States.

Commenting on municipal begging, the Wall Street Journal said the New Yorker "is far from alone in holding out the municipal tin cup, or dish-pan."

If cities haven't the ability and pride to handle their own post-war financing, the nation can kiss the idea of a balanced national budget goodbye and prepare for federal taxation, and inflation that will make a dollar bill look like a thin dime.

STATE TREASURY SURPLUS

The war prosperity sweeping over the nation is pushing into state coffers millions of dollars in added revenues. Many states are rolling up fat surpluses and California's is one of the fattest.

On April 30 the treasury at Sacramento was bursting with an excess of nearly $138 million. That's a lot of money even in these days when Uncle Sam hardly counts anything less than a billion.

A surplus such as this is a handy thing, but it is also dangerous. The bigger it gets the more the clamor to spend it—often not too wisely. State departments urge larger appropriations for their respective budgets, and various other groups seek a slice of the monetary melon.

A large surplus also prompts people to look to the state capital as well as to Washington for work program "handouts" as a means of maintaining post-war prosperity instead of looking primarily to the natural resources of the state and the energy of its people.

California will face serious problems after victory. But we should not look to government spending for their solution. Our state is in a favored position—rich soil, abundant mineral wealth, enormous post-war possibilities for commerce with the Orient. an unparalleled statewide branch banking system that has been, and will continue to be, a major factor in aiding business development, and a war-born industrial empire that gives promise of maintaining and even expanding much of its present activity.

Many are the indications that California is destined to become America's center of population, finance, and industry. That position, if achieved, will come not through government spending, but rather through full use of our natural resources and the capacity of our people.

LOST: 250 PLANES

For several weeks much vital war production, particularly of Mustang long-range fighter planes, was halted because 3300 foremen were on strike in the Detroit area. Thousands of other workers also were idle because the Army would not accept products made without proper supervision.

Called to Washington, strike leaders were told by General Arnold that the Air Force had been given a "most severe setback" by the work stoppage. The foremen then voted to go back on the job. But their return did not bring back the 250 planes that were not produced while they were out.

If ever the men in our armed forces needed the full support of very worker in the nation, it is certainly now at the most crucial hour in all history—the eve of the great invasion.

THE RED CROSS IN OCEAN BEACH

By ONA E. PITCOCK

Ocean Beach women responded wonderfully to the appeal for extra cookies last week. Never have we had so many and Miss Nye wants you to know everything went off splendidly at the Arts and Craft class on the opening day. We sent in 123½ dozen cookies and each boy had a treat. Both camp and hospital and the Ocean Beach center want to thank you.

Mrs. Luzelle Oberhellman is home from the Navy hospital but will have to take it easy for some time to come.

Mrs. C. A. Goeb has taken up a worthwhile project and is having success with it. For one hour each day, after school, she has the children, both boys and girls, from her block come to her house and knit squares for Afgans. These children are from 9 to 15 years of age and they knit very well. The robe when finished will go to the hospital.

The Brownie troop under Mrs. Gardner Hart brought in 21½ dozen cookies for the Craft class. They did them up in fancy paper and stickers. They also brought rose buds and carnations.

One thing Ocean Beach men as well as women are not doing to the best of their ability and that is the giving of blood at the Red Cross blood "bank." This means so much and will be needed so badly, when the invasion takes place and more men are wounded. Won't all of you who possibly can go to the Center at 446 W. Beech st. and donate a pint of your blood to save a life. You know what it does for one man and it does not hurt one bit. Call F-7704 and make an appointment. When you receive your gallon pin you will be proud to wear it and well you can be because if you cannot be on the fighting front yourself your blood can help fight.

Don't forget that phonograph records are wanted all the year round and that citrus fruit such as lemons, oranges and grape fruit is needed for the Servicemen's club in the park. When our men return from foreign duty, especially the South Pacific, they need these fruit juices. If you can only give a few it will help. Call B-5639 and we will have these articles picked up.

Our boys want to get the war won and come back home to family and friends and "life at its best." To speed their homecoming you are asked to give your best on the home front.

PLANS MADE FOR NEW PACIFIC BEACH AREA DISTRIBUTING RESERVOIR

San Diego city public works department has prepared plans for a new Pacific Beach distributing reservoir as a part of water distribution projects costing $600,000, for which federal approval is being sought, reports City Manager Walter W. Cooper.

The request for government approval was discussed at a conference in San Diego Saturday between Cooper and Arthur Gorman, of the war utilities branch of the war production board, and Maj. General Arnold, area representative in the 11 western states.

Bethany School Set Friday, June 9 for Closing Exercises

Bethany Lutheran school is nearing the completion of its third successful school year. June 9 is the date set. Since the opening of this term the following have been admitted as new students: Joyce Vanderpool, Freddy Graf, Dick Pilney, Bobby Williams, Ludi Graf and Betty Lee DeArmond.

Last week Bethany school celebrated the birthdays of Donna Mae Riese and Jimmy Phelps, with the usual refreshments. On Thursday afternoon the children surprised the pastor and "took over," entertaining for Pastor and Mrs. Martin Lankow and Vic Herrmann. The "eats" included cookies, doughnuts and potato chips. Mrs. Roberta Pilney made some recordings of the children to complete the party. Bob Gosnell, eighth grader at Bethany school who was instrumental in rescuing a navy pilot, whose plane had crashed near his home, was honored. Bobby used his paddleboard to reach the pilot and, by pulling him onto it, kept him afloat until help arrived.

On Memorial day the children made a trip to Mt. Hope cemetery and placed flowers on the grave of Mrs. Victoria Kunz whose gift made possible the building of the school chapel. Bethany school is holding its closing day exercises for the year on the evening of June 9th.

USO Appeals For Music Instruments

Some time ago the public's cooperation was sought by the Ocean Beach U.S.O. citizens committee in meeting requests from men of the armed forces for musical instruments, and according to Lloyd Greeson, chairman, the response here and elsewhere in the San Diego county area was gratifying.

More than 75 instruments of all kinds, it was reported, were contributed by public-spirited citizens, whose splendid gesture was deeply appreciated by the overseas-bound military units which were the recipients.

So many requests have been received by the San Diego U.S.O. Council and its Women's U.S.O. committee for additional instruments that a second appeal is being made to the public through local U.S.O. units.

The need, it was stated, is for "anything that will make musical sounds." The instruments are given free to units soon to be sent abroad, and to which the governmetn does not issue these items.

Musical instruments which are contributed should preferably be in good condition, but if in need of repair will be reconditioned by U.S.O. volunteer workers.

Particularly needed are various types of string instruments, clarinets, trombones, cornets and accordions, but it is emphasized "that anything from a harmonica to a piano will be gratefully accepted."

It is time again for our Central committee meeting, Wednesday, June 7th, in the San Diego Chamber of Commerce building. These monthly meetings are very interesting and seetor leaders are urged to ask their block leaders and friends to attend if at all possible. The meeting is called to order at 10 a.m. and closes at noon. The theme for this month is "American Citizenship" and Mrs. David Fraser has arranged for several interesting speakers.

With reference to the crossword puzzles pasted on cardboard with the answer on the reverse side about which we spoke at our last meeting, we are pleased to advise that they have been coming in, but we could use more. Try and make up some, even if only a few. Ask the children to help.

Recently we read an article entitled "Your War Time Daily Dozen" and we are repeating them here:

1. Share your car.
2. Watch your tires.
3. Keep your speed 35 or below.
4. Zip your lip.
5. Go easy on butter and save waste fats.
6. Don't crab.
7. Give your blood.
8. Cut your travel.
9. Save scrap.
10. Pass up black markets.
11. Buy only what you need, and
12. BUY WAR BONDS.

Need Imperative For 1,600 Blood Donors Next Week

In the midst of the most serious emergency the Red Cross blood center has yet faced, officials of the center today issued an urgent appeal for 1600 blood donors during the coming week.

"Two months ago the length of time between donations was extended from eight weeks to 10 weeks" explained Miss Margaret Price, director of the center at Columbia and Beech streets. "The change was made primarily to simplify booking. Eventually it will mean a more even distribution of appointments over a long period of time, but now during the adjustment period we are facing a dismal failure to supply the army and navy with the necessary blood for plasma unless hundreds of new appointments are made, and made now."

According to the center, these are the days and hours and on each day 400 donations are needed:

June 5, Monday, 9 to 5:20.
June 6, Tuesday, 12 to 7:20.
June 8, Thursday, 12 to 7:20.
June 9, Friday, 9 to 5:20.

Pointing out that as the invasion activity increases the need for blood plasma will grow, Miss Price urges the immediate attention of organizations and individuals to this problem. "The plasma must be there when needed" Miss Price added. "Please direct your most concentrated efforts to help supply San Diego's 400-a-day quota during this emergency."

Appointments and information can be secured by calling the booking office, F-7704, she says.

LOCAL CHURCH VOTES FOR RETURN OF REV. J. ROBERTS TO POINT LOMA METHODIST

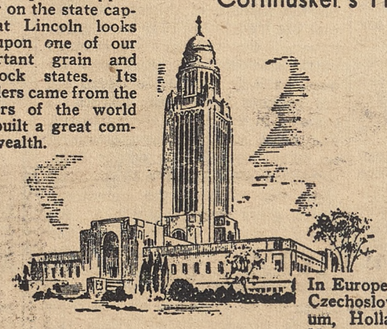

The Loma Methodist church congregation meeting in the conference year's final quarterly conference Monday evening, voted for the return to this charge of Rev. James F. Roberts. Final action on the matter will be taken at the southern California annual conference, to be held this year at Pasadena the latter part of this month. Rev. Roberts came to the local church in March 1943 from the Rolando Village Methodist church in East San Diego.

Annual reports given at Monday's meeting here showed growth in both membership and attendance of the Point Loma church under the direction of Pastor Roberts.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, pilot of a Flying Fortress, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men were killed while fleeing for shelter, and Old 99, with many other Forts, was demolished on the ground. After escaping to Australia, what is left of the squadron flies to Java, where they go on many missions over the Philippines and the Java sea. The boys in Java hear what happened to the Marblehead and the Houston and morale sags. The Dutch blow up their ammunition dumps, and the order comes through to evacuate. The little Dutch navy fights a losing fight in the dark. Java collapses. Sgt. Warrenfeltz never gets his money.

CHAPTER XIX

"When I said I hadn't got it, he said if it ever did come through, I wasn't to open it until he got back, or something like that. He'd meant every word of it, and yet now it seemed he didn't want me to see it. I couldn't understand. But it didn't seem to matter. Because what did any letter matter, now that we could talk, all we wanted to, around the world?"

"It was long after midnight when we finished," said Frank. "But it was some satisfaction to know it would cost the Japanese maybe five hundred dollars, and I only hoped I'd be out of Java so they couldn't collect from me.

"Then I got back to work on the Dutch military, who of course were up all that night. They knew what was coming tomorrow even if the civilians were only beginning to suspect. It was two o'clock in the morning when I got Major Fisher out of bed with the news that already the landing barges of one flank of this invasion force had been sighted right off the beach.

"After a final desperate call to the Dutch General van Oeyen, he agreed our boys might leave, turning their P-40's over to the Dutch fighter pilots, provided that before they went they strafed the Jap landing barges. Without verbal orders from the Dutch commander, they would not have gone.

"So I rustled two cars and a truck to transport them, and by four o'clock we were headed for Gnoro. We got there a few minutes before dawn, to find our boys were up and out on that final mission, although they did not know it was their last.

"Again we telephoned Van Oeyen in Surabaya to tell him the orders had been obeyed, and he told us reluctantly to bid them Godspeed and good luck; they had fought the good fight, and those who returned from this mission were now free to go to Australia. If there was a way.

"I hoped there still would be. The Colonel had told me the day before that if I could get them across Java—to Jockstrap—by noon, they would find three Fortresses which he had ordered back from Australia to pick them up. However, he couldn't guarantee that these Forts would dare wait on that field beyond noon.

"As we stood on the Gnoro Field of course I got tense. Would those kids come back alive and in time to get across Java by noon? If we were late, would the bomber pilots get jittery and maybe pull out without us? Not that I'd blame them, for today no plane would be safe on any field in Java.

"The Dutch pilots are grave, but they make us welcome.

"Then comes the roar of P-40's and here is the first flight—in out of the Rising Sun as though fleeing from it. Jack Dale is its leader. We grab them. What happened?

"It looks bad, they tell us. There were so many barges. And when they started spraying them, the barges threw up horrible cones of fire, in great masses. There was a cross fire, too—from Jap shore batteries, already landed. At last they had set their ugly, crooked teeth into the fair white coastline of Java.

"Then Jack said, in a low voice, 'When in hell will we get out of here, Frank?'

"I said I had news for him, but just then the next flight comes roaring in—it's three Hurricanes flown by Dutch pilots, all that is left of the Dutch Air Force this final day, except of course they had planeless pilots who were to take up our abandoned P-40's.

"Now here's the third flight, buzzing in low—P-40's this time, and the American boys still have their old spirit left because they buzz up the drome, come roaring in right over the roof of the operations office—for a fighter pilot it's like knocking at the door. They're still the old 17th Pursuit Group—or what's left of them.

"I looked at the P-40's. They are so full of holes they should be condemned—there is hardly one the Dutch would dare take up again. We were leaving them little enough.

"Now my boys are gulping coffee. They grab an apple each and sandwiches to take along, and cram things in their bags, and I suppose it's time for goodbys. Captain Anamaet, leader of the Dutch fighters, tall, thin, dark-haired, with a finely chiseled face, nervous like many fighters, is standing silent at one side. His Dutch boys are with him.

"What can we say? Our American boys have fought with them like brothers for weeks. We're now making a dash for safety.

"Anamaet is the courageous one. He walks forward, puts up his hand, and says simply, without a quaver, 'Thanks for all you have done. We have tried, but we are finished.' Gravely, and with no bitterness.

"I ask him why he and all his boys don't come out with us. We'll find room for him in the planes. Then we can continue the war from Australia. He shakes his head.

"Now our boys are loaded in the truck, and presently we're out on the main highway, headed across Java, but just then we hear a familiar drone—Jap dive bombers. Smelling their way into Java, they've finally found this field. It's only luck they hadn't found it before. Our boys crowd against the tail gate of the truck to watch them peel off one by one, assume that 40-degree angle toward the ground, let go the little egg, pull out of their dives and then—r-r-r-umpf, the bomb takes hold. It punctuates the lesson we'd been trying for days to drive home to the Dutch infantry generals—that the field was now untenable. It was only the weather which kept the Japs out of it yesterday.

It was two o'clock in the morning when I got Major Fisher out of bed.

"But now we have worries of our own. There are seventy-six of us in this little caravan—fifteen of them pilots. We have only one road map, so the drivers' instructions are to drive carefully and stay together. It's a long drive at the speed we can make. A close squeeze to make it by noon. Then, in spite of the road map, we get lost—not badly, but two or three times we must backtrack. Then I see we'll never make it by noon. The boys, tired from many weeks of fighting, try to doze standing up in that jolting truck. I don't sleep, but I have nightmares. At every crossroads I wonder if lightning-fast light Jap tanks mayn't come sliding in on us. Even if we had time to turn and run before they open fire with their turret guns, they would have cut off our escape to Jockstrap.

"My wrist-watch hour hand seems to race. These tired boys, bouncing in that truck, trust me. The Air Corps got them in here; now the Air Corps is getting what is left of them out. They don't doubt that a big bomber will be waiting with its door open on the Jockstrap runway to take them to Australia. Suppose we get there to find the bomber pilots have waited past the rendezvous hours, and then gone on back to Australia empty—and we look at a vacant field knowing the Japs are closing in behind us?

"My watch hand races toward noon and we're still hours from Jockstrap, but I have an idea. We're not far from what shows on my map as a fair-sized town which should have telephones from which, while the boys have lunch, I can call the Colonel and tell him we're on our way—that those bombers must wait.

"The town is a sleepy little place built round what at a quick glance one might mistake for a Middle Western courthouse square. War hasn't touched it, and you'd think could never come. In the hotel they stare at our uniforms—they're the first American ones they've seen. The boys order, while I hunt a telephone to call the Colonel at Jockstrap.

"But minutes tick by and they can't locate him. Nor anyone else who can deliver a message that we are coming, and those bombers must wait.

"Do I waste more time calling? Or do we hurry on, hoping we'll get there before they are frightened from the field? That seems more sensible, so we forge on. I haven't the heart to tell them I couldn't reach the Colonel.

"They're all tired in the cars, there's no wrestling or kidding, which is amazing for fighter pilots. Finally I know from the map we must be approaching Jockstrap. But on what side of the town is the field? We can't waste precious minutes uselessly fighting its narrow streets.

"Then, to one side, I see leaping flames and a column of smoke. That's all the marker you need to find an airdrome at this stage of a war. I tell the driver to steer for the smoke and he'll find the field.

"And at first it seems all to have been for nothing. There are the hangars, split wide open—six or seven Forts burning merrily. Also the water tower is hit. Professionally, I admire it as one of the best bomb runs I've ever seen. The Japs seem to have made a perfect job of cutting off our retreat—but no! There remains a single Fortress!

"It seems Lieutenant Vandevanter managed in the nick of time to get her off the ground, and flew out to sea until the raid was over. Luckily they sent only bombers, and no Zeros which could shoot him down. Here he is now, perched on the edge of the field.

"But at the utmost he can carry only a third of us. I dispatch about fifty in the trucks to Madiun Field, hoping it isn't blown up, and that two Forts the Colonel tells me are due in from Australia can get them out.

"And now we have a bonfire of everything we couldn't take with us, but which we don't want the Japs to have—all our photographs, every official paper, the entire records of the 17th Pursuit Group for the Java and Philippine wars. It all goes up in those flames on Jockstrap Field forever—except what the few remaining boys standing around that fire can remember of what the others did. We even chuck in a few bomb sights that were kicking around—for luck, and for kindling.

"But just as the flames were leaping highest, the air-raid siren started to scream. We dived for a drainage ditch, and I think I got my worst scare of the war. Because up above were two Zeros approaching, and down here on the field was our solitary Fortress — our last chance to escape—sitting in front of God and everybody (including those Japs) mother-naked and defenseless. How long I held my breath, staring up into the sky, I couldn't say now. But for some reason they hadn't dived on us yet, and then when one rolled up to let the other take a picture I realized it was only a recco flight, to take the damage they'd done a few hours before.

"I began loading the boys into that plane. But I did one final thing. I couldn't forget Captain Anamaet, standing there on that Gnoro Field watching us pull out, and if I'd wanted to, the others wouldn't have let me. So with the Dutch liaison officer there at Jockstrap, we made arrangements that if tomorrow night we could get any planes through from Australia, they would circle our old bomber field at Malang. The liaison officer was to notify Anamaet, so that if his Dutch fighter pilots could get there, and Malang wasn't by then in Jap hands, they would light a bonfire on its field as a signal that it was safe for our Forts to come in and pick them up and take them out to Australia, where we'd have another chance to fight the war together.

"We kept the date. The next night Captains Bill Bohnaker and Eddie Green slipped through to Malang. For forty-five minutes they circled our old field. But there was no bonfire. Maybe Anamaet's boys had died during the day, giving their all for Java. Maybe they'd got to the field just ahead of the Japs and were now prisoners, unable to light their bonfire but listening in the darkness as Bill and Eddie circled and circled above them. What happened we never knew. But I'm glad we couldn't have foreseen that darkened field at Malang as we all climbed into our own Fortress, turned off the Jockstrap field, and headed east for Australia, flying into a rising moon."

"Nothing much was going to happen on that flight to Australia," continued Frank, "although we couldn't know it. All had to cram forward for the takeoff, of course, for with that big load in the rear we'd never have got her tail up. We manned battle stations, and only after we were halfway across the ocean did the gunners leave their turrets. I rode up in the pilot's compartment, and there were at least seven of us there, three sitting on the floor.

"At two o'clock in the morning we sight the coast in the moonlight, which gives it a ghostly hue. It's just flat desert, but finally we find the little town of Broome. We circle it and finally a flare path breaks out below—they're tossing kerosene flares out of a moving auto to show us the runway, so we circle and come in.

"I couldn't sleep. The mosquitoes were making me groggy, and also I was thinking of our planes circling Malang Field for Anamaet. After a while I got up and looked out the hangar door. The first pale dawn was breaking over Broome, which I could now see consisted of a general store, a gas station, two houses, and this hangar shack—perched out here on the edge of nothing, where the red sand desert of Australia meets the blue salt desert of the sea.

Frosty Foods

Along about summertime, there should be a new word added to our vocabularies — cooluscious. That's right, something cool and luscious to make us forget sweltering sun, high temperature and humidity.

In this class of foods come the cool, tinkling drinks, dewy salads and frosty desserts. Even the main dish can be cool, a filling meal salad for those who want hearty foods, jellied tuna or salmon molds with icy cucumber sauce, or heaps of satisfying potato salad.

Whole meals can be made from cool foods, but it's a good idea to have something warm, even if only toasted or heated rolls so the family does not tire of them. Sometimes you'll find a cup of hot tea more cooling with cool foods than an iced drink; other times, it's just the opposite. Let your judgment guide you.

Let's begin with a round-up of cooling drinks, some plain, some partified:

Strawberry Frost.
1 pint strawberries
1 pint lemon ice
Carbonated water

Clean and crush berries. Pour into six glasses. Add lemon ice and stir until well mixed, then fill glasses with carbonated water.

Fruited Tea.
(Serves 8)

3 lemons
1 cup boiling water
1 cup granulated sugar
1 quart cold, strong tea
3 oranges, sliced
¼ cup maraschino cherries
1 cup canned apricots

Squeeze juice from lemons. Cover skins with water and let stand until cool. Drain, pressing water off skins. Combine with sugar, lemon juice. Add tea, orange slices, juice drained from cherries and apricots. Chill. Chop apricots and cherries; add with ice to beverage just before serving.

Save Used Fats!

Cherry Milk Flip.
6 tablespoons canned cherry juice
2 tablespoons corn syrup
Few grains salt
1 cup milk

Blend cherry juice with corn syrup. Add salt and stir in cold milk. Turn into chilled glass and top with a spoonful of whipped cream, garnish with fresh or canned cherry and a sprig of fresh mint. Yield 1 glass.

Lemonade Syrup.
(Makes 1 pint)

⅔ cup lemon juice
2 cups boiling water
1 cup granulated sugar

Squeeze juice from lemons. Pour water over them and let stand 15 minutes. Drain, press water from skins, then combine with juice and sugar in saucepan. Simmer for 10 minutes. Pour into sterile jar and store until ready to use in refrigerator. Use 4 to 5 tablespoons to glass filled ¾ full with ice and water.

Cooling salads may be either the mainstay of the meal, accompaniment to the meat or a dessert. Recipes for each of the types are given here:

Macaroni Salad.
(Serves 8)

1 8-ounce package macaroni
3 tablespoons grated onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped stuffed olives
1 cup chopped tart red apple
¼ cup chopped nuts
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup salad dressing

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Rinse with hot water. Chill thoroughly. Add remaining ingredients and toss lightly. Serve in crisp lettuce cups.

Molded Beet Salad.
(Serves 6)

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
¾ cup boiling water
⅓ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2½ cups cooked shredded beets
¾ cup diced celery
2 tablespoons grated horseradish

Soak gelatin in cold water. Add to boiling water, stir until dissolved. Add lemon juice, salt, sugar and chill until mixture thickens. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pour into a mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce and garnish with green pepper slices.

Save Used Fats!

Frozen Pear Salad.
(Serves 4)

¼ pound soft American cheese
½ cup top milk
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped
2 tablespoons sugar
8 halves canned pears
¼ teaspoon salt
Watercress

Rub cheese through sieve nd mix together all ingredients except pears and watercress. Arrange pears, core side down in flat dish and pour over them the cheese mixture. Allow to freeze until stiff, then unmold on watercress.

Desserts that are menu-perfect and point-easy are these:

Strawberry Parfait.
(Makes 1½ pints)

½ cup sugar
¼ cup cold water
1 egg separated
1 pint strawberries
1 cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped

Boil sugar and water until syrup forms a thread. Pour over beaten egg yolk, beating constantly. Combine stiffly beaten egg white and beat until cool. Chill, fold in berries which have been pressed through a sieve and whipped cream. Put in refrigerator tray and freeze.

Cool Lunch Quickies: For quick summer lunches, store sandwich fillings in tightly covered jars in refrigerator. When ready to serve, take out spread bread:

Try grated carrot with chopped celery, mayonnaise, salt and pepper.

Combine chopped green pepper with salad dressing and spread over sliced tomatoes. This is colorful, too!

Flake leftover salmon, mix with pickle relish, mayonnaise and use on rye or whole wheat bread.

Cold leftover ham loaf is good with mustard or horseradish on pumpernicke' bread.

Chopped hard-boiled eggs combined with sliced stuffed olives, softened butter, salt and pepper goes best on toasted white bread.

Elephants and Some Fish Are Sleepless Creatures

In the animal world the elephant, by reason of its size and strength, might be expected to enjoy long and profound periods of slumber. Not so, however, for it seldom has more than two or three hours' rest at a time. It very seldom lies down, and spends the greater part of the day and night in restless shufflings and oscillations.

From observations made in captivity on miniature whales, dolphins and porpoises, it would appear as if these animals never slept at all. A porpoise kept in an aquarium continued to swim round and round its tank throughout the 24 hours. The specimen in question never once stopped in the course.

Quaint Cookie Corner Is Useful in Kitchen

HERE is a cookie jar that may be made at home from odds and ends of wood stenciled with gay peasant figures and quaint lettering. But that is not all. This jar or box sits on an old fashioned brightly painted corner shelf which may be cut out of thin wood and put together quickly with glue and brads.

Even if you do not have a jig saw or a coping saw to cut out the graceful curves of the shelf pieces, you may mark the design on a piece of plywood or other thin wood and have it cut at your nearest woodworking shop. As for the cookie box, it is all straight cuts.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

After the war American synthetic plants should produce enough to meet our military requirements, perhaps 200,000 tons or more a year, and as much additional as can be justified through the free play of economic forces to meet then current civilian needs. This is the recommendation of John L. Collyer, president of The B. F. Goodrich Co.

At the beginning of the year our stockpile of natural rubber was less than one quarter of what it was at the time of Pearl Harbor. Unless plantations are recaptured from the Japs and immediately put into operation our imports of crude are not expected to exceed 80,000 tons in 1944.
